Image Audiovisuals Achieves Second InfoComm International Gold Level Designation

DENVER (Nov. 18, 2008) -- For the second straight year, Denver-based Image Audiovisuals has qualified as an InfoComm International Gold Certified AudioVisual Solutions Provider (CAVSP). This designation recognizes that 75 percent of Image Audiovisuals' sales staff, customer service department and technical crew have achieved and maintained individual InfoComm Certification.

Founded in Denver in 1988, Image AV is one of the largest western U.S. audio-visual providers. It offers a wide range of services, including advanced presentation technologies, commercial systems, multi-media production, media duplication, integration and home automation and home theater services.

InfoComm awards individual certification to audiovisual professionals who have demonstrated knowledge and comprehension of the science and technology used in communications, including audio, video, display and systems. Technicians, engineers, designers, salespeople, customer service personnel, managers and executives are eligible to take the individual certification test.

"We're honored to be recognized by InfoComm again," said David Mueller, president of Image AV. "A CAVSP designation reassures our customers of our professionalism and our commitment to excellence. They can be confident we will stay current on the latest AV technologies and techniques."

The company-level CAVSP Certification program is the only such program available for the commercial audiovisual industry. The Gold CAVSP designation means that Image Audiovisuals agreed to comply with “10 Standards of Excellence” developed in collaboration with industry experts to emphasize the best practices of audiovisual businesses.
